SYDNEY'S 150th ANNIVERSARY

Montreal, Que.—The 150th anniversary of Sydney, Cape Breton, is being celebrated this year with a gala week which will be held from July 29 to August 4, to mark the founding of the city in 1785 by Major J. F. W. Des Barres, Lieutenant Governor of Cape Breton, the name Sydney being applied in honor of Thomas Townshend, Lord Sydney, the Colonial Secretary in the British Cabinet.

It is planned to make the event the occasion of an Old Home Week and it is expected that former Cape Bretoners will take advantage of the opportunity to revisit their old homes, the Maritime Express and Ocean

Limited trains of the Canadian National Railways operating daily from Montreal to the Maritimes.

Abounding in scenic beauty and possessing fishing waters that are famous for the fighting qualities and wide range of its game-fish, Cape Breton has become known as an ideal spot for a holiday and the celebrations this year are expected to be an added inducement to fishermen, vacationists and former residents to visit this scenic area on the Atlantic coast.

The 150-mile canoe race between Drumheller and Red Deer was won by Swain brothers, their time being less than twenty-four hours.

Edmonton, July 18.—Alberta provincial election will be held on Thursday, August 22nd, it was announced by Hon. George Hoadley, acting premier, on Tuesday. Nomination day will be Monday, August 12th.

Announcement of the election date finds political parties ready for halting day. For the 63 seats in the legislature, it is expected more than 200 candidates will be nominated.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

On Wednesday afternoon next, July 24th, the Sunday school and congregational picnic of the Central United church will be held at Burns' Creek. Announcement will be made as to the time of leaving. Members and friends of the congregation are invited to join with the Sunday school in making this a happy occasion for the children.

SALVATION ARMY HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

The picnic grounds behind the glassy waters of the Crow's Nest Lake, towered on all sides by the great mountains of the Pass, marked the picturesque spot where the Coleman S.A. Young People and their parents spent a most enjoyable day.

The shade of the beautiful green trees on the lake shore provided a restful place from the heat of the burning sun. The Young People were kept happy by swimming, racing, games and novelty competitions, much to the amusement of onlookers. It seemed that time to go home came altogether too soon.

Let me take this opportunity of thanking the business men and friends who so readily helped to make the picnic such a great success.

TAXES EQUAL 10 P.C. OF HIGHWAY DEBT

Taxes amounting to $47,041,738 and aggregating more than ten per cent of the total highway debt ($438,118,659) outstanding in all provinces in Canada in 1933, were collected from Canadian motorists in that year from two sources alone—gasoline tax and registration fees—according to figures taken from the Dominion bureau of statistics.

Dr. Douglas Corsan, pioneer medical practitioner of the district, passed away at Fernie on Saturday last, following but a brief illness. Dr. Corsan came to British Columbia more than thirty-five years ago, first settling in Fort Steele. He moved to Fernie in 1900. He is survived by his widow, one son and two daughters.

LETHBRIDGE CELEBRATES GOLDEN JUBILEE

Lethbridge this year is celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding by Sir Alexander Galt and his son, Mr. Elliott T. Galt in 1885.

Lethbridge's development followed the finding of coal in 1872 by Nicholas Sheran who came from Fort Benton, Montana, to visit his friends, Hamilton and Healy, of Fort Whoop-Up, eight miles southwest of Lethbridge. He remained to open the first coal mine in Alberta before the Mounted Police came to Fort Macleod in 1874.

Lethbridge was named in 1885 after William Lethbridge, president of the North Western Coal and Navigation Company, and is today the third city in size in the Province.

One of the features of the Jubilee Celebration will be the presentation each evening of the Historical Pageant "Fort Whoop-Up Days," with hundreds of actors participating.

Guy Weadick, well known rodeo impresario, will direct the stampee performance each afternoon of the celebration, July 22nd, 23rd and 24th.

Other features include platform attractions, dog show, midway, dancing, livestock, arts and historical exhibits.

MOTOR ASSOCIATION CALLS UPON CANDIDATES FOR POLICES

A vigorous campaign to obtain definite declarations from candidates in the forthcoming provincial and municipal elections concerning their policies in regard to highway improvements and attracting tourists has been launched by the Alberta Motor Association.

An appeal has been made to motorists in all parts of the province to bring the issues before the candidates in a set of definite questions. Realizing that this in all probability will be a big tourist year, the A.M.A. is emphasizing the need of action to meet the demands of a growing trade.

Here are questions to be asked the candidates:

1. What are you prepared to do in developing motor tourist traffic?
2. Does motor tourist traffic create a market for Alberta farmers?
3. What would be the gross annual turnover of this traffic for Albertans?
4. Can Alberta hope to enjoy this tourist market without having hard surfaced highways?
5. Do you favor using all revenue from motor licenses and gasoline tax for highway purposes?

(Cut this out and question the candidates at election time.)

There should be no doubt of the fact that tourist traffic brings fresh money into the province and the lion's share of this goes to the primary producer, which is the farmer.

The motorist spends a good portion of his dollars with the farmer for fresh eggs, butter, vegetables and other needs.

In view of that fact, the farmer is vitally concerned with the need of having hard surfaced highways over which the tourist will travel to see the glorious attractions of this country and have joy in spending his money here.

Arising out of resolutions from practically all Social Credit groups in the Drumheller valley, condemning the fascist methods of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, prime minister of Canada, in dealing with the single men's crisis of the unemployed camps, the Drumheller group passed a unanimous resolution instructing the secretary to communicate with William Aberhart, Alberta S.C. leader, urging him to call on all Social Credit groups to inaugurate public petitions to be sent to His Majesty the King of Great Britain, protesting the violation of British constitutional rights of liberty and free speech.

NEWLY WEDS WILL LIVE AT BELLEVUE

STAVELY, July 13.—A pretty wedding took place in Stavely at 2:30 this afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. R. Hall, the bride's sister, when Laura Beatrice, daughter of Mrs. A. B. Nicholson and the late J. Nicholson, of Calgary, became the bride of William T. Beck, of Bellevue, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Beck, of Coleman. Rev. J. A. Hockin, B.A., B.D., of the Stavely United church, was the officiating minister.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, L. R. Hall, looked charming in a navy blue crepe and picture hat to match. Her only flowers was a boutonniere of pink rosebuds. Miss Mary Turner, of Edmonton, played the wedding march.

About fifteen of the immediate relatives were present and were served with a dainty luncheon, after which the wedding party motored to Calgary in time to enjoy the dinner reception served them at the Braemar Lodge at 8 o'clock, the tables being decorated with the bridal roses from the wedding home. From there Mr. and Mrs. Beck left for a few weeks' honeymoon to be spent in Montreal and other eastern cities, after which they will take up their residence in Bellevue.

FLASH, EDITOR SANE AT 70

Donald C. Dunbar, described by an Ontario contemporary as one of the brightest and most courageous editors in Canadian journalism, celebrated his 70th birthday this month. Mr. Dunbar, who is a native of Orangeville, Ontario, is being widely congratulated by his friends of the weekly press. Commenting on this milestone, Editor Dunbar says in his paper, the Estevan (Saskatchewan) Mercury: "Getting on to be 70 years old is an accomplishment all by itself. But getting to be 70 years old after having lived the life of a weekly newspaper editor for nearly thirty years, and still in full possession of his laugh, his limbs, and his sanity, is something yet again. It's news."

At a hearing before the Conciliation Board at Drumheller, it was discovered that mines in that area have been in red ink for at least two years.

According to announcement made in last week's issue of the Fernie Free Press, the business of the Western Canada Wholesale Company has been taken over by the MacDonald Consolidated Co., a large wholesale concern doing business in all the towns of this district. The business is to be conducted as usual. The new concern is expected to take over the business about the first of August.

The request of the provincial department of municipal affairs that the sum of $954.58 be paid out of general revenue of the town to meet a deficit in supplementary revenue arising because of alleged underlevying since 1926, in accordance with assessment set out by the equalization board, will not be complied with, it was decided at a meeting of the Blairmore town council, who claim they are not interested in the actions of previous councils in this regard.

League Representation

Sir Robert Falconer Wants A Foreign Minister For Canada
Hope that Canada would establish a separate "ministry of foreign affairs," was expressed by Sir Robert Falconer, president of the League of Nations Society, at Ottawa.

"As Great Britain has appointed a minister of League of Nations affairs, Canada also might surely participate more fully in its affairs. While the effects of Italian and Japanese policies may seem remote from Canadians, we cannot be sure that they would not involve us in serious consequences, therefore, we should at once take our part as a people more fully in consideration of world affairs."

The London Sunday Times carried the story of Miss Violet Piercy, the woman marathon runner, who ran five and one-quarter miles from Highbury to the Monument, sprinted up its 311 steps and emerged at the top 46 minutes 1 second after she started. The ascent of the stairs took 2 minutes 56 seconds. "No other woman or man," she stated, "has attempted this."

The Trans-Canada Airway

Way Is Being Prepared For Coast To Coast Service

The trans-Canada airway will be a reality within a couple of years if the appropriation made for civil aviation in the supplementary estimates brought down in parliament is amplified by similar votes in the next two years. What is being done now, is to prepare the way — physically. The operation of the service and its nature and extent will be a matter of policy to be determined when everything is ready. But the plans all contemplate an air service across the country — handling mails and passengers. Depending upon the type of machine used and making allowance for landings, it should be possible to fly from Montreal to Vancouver in 15 hours or less.

The appropriations now made, however, are wholly for preparatory work — the construction of airbases, landing fields, night lighting, wireless facilities and other accessories of the service. It will also be necessary to arrange for extensive investigations through trial flights, the investigation of atmospheric conditions and the best routes for flying. The work is now well advanced with 49 landing places constructed while the new appropriation of almost $500,000 will enable it to be actively prosecuted this year. The engineers have the whole plan laid out and this year's appropriations will simply fit in with what has been done previously.

In another branch of civil aviation the air service performed for the different departments by the Air Force — there is an increased vote of $305,000. This will allow the carrying on of extra preventive services for the Mounted Police aerial surveys and a variety of similar operations.

Similarly the military end of flying will have an impetus in the vote of $500,000 for maintenance and training. This contemplates a certain addition of the personnel of the Air Force, but the exact number is not yet determined.

Demonstrates New Plane

Will Land In Small Space And Uses Little Gasoline

Dean B. Hammond, 26, of Ypsilanti, Mich., has designed an aeroplane which he asserts will "land on a dime" and gets mileage on gasoline like a low-priced automobile.

Hammond demonstrated his new plane for United States government officials. Fifteen of the new Hammond model Y ships have been ordered by the federal bureau of air commerce for use in the inspection service.

The model Y can alight in a space 100 feet long at a speed of approximately 35 miles an hour and takes off in less than 200 feet. Features which make this possible are a three-wheel landing gear and a pusher propeller.

Holstein Cattle

All Previous Records Are Broken For Registration Of Pure Bred Stock

All existing records for registration and transfer of pure bred Holstein cattle in Canada were broken, according to half-yearly figures released from the head office of the Holstein Friesian Association of Canada, Brandon. In all, 14,705 head changed hands, which represents a 90 per cent. increase over 1934. Exports to the United States totalled 4,536 head and were 180 per cent. higher than the same period last year.

Registration for the period totalled 15,531 and showed a 23 per cent. improvement, despite heavy exportation of breeding stock.

Railroads Of Canada

History Of Railroads In Dominion In Of Absorbing Interest

After a century of railroading Canada now has over 42,000 miles of railroad and in railway mileage per capita is second only to Australia among the nations of the world.

Construction of Canada's first railroad venture began in June, 1835, one hundred years ago. This line, known as the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway, was only 16 miles long. It connected St. Johns and Laprairie, Quebec, and was in reality a portage railroad, the original purpose being to shorten the journey between Montreal and New York. From St. Johns transportation was effected by boat through the Richelieu River to Lake Champlain and then along the Hudson River. The railroad was opened for traffic one year later, and the motive power in the first year of its operation was horse-drawn. In the following year, 1837, locomotives were provided.

Canada's railway era proper began in 1851 with the inauguration of the Grand Trunk System and several subsidiary lines throughout Ontario and Quebec. At the time of Confederation, 1867, the railway mileage in Canada was 2,278. The next and most important step in railway development in Canada was the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, completed in 1885. The completion of this trans-continental line was one of the most significant events in Canadian history. It linked the east and west with direct and rapid communication and made the Dominion for the first time a real, united, economic unit. Rapid settlement in the areas tributary to the first trans-continental railway provided abundant and lucrative traffic for the road, and this led to the construction of two more trans-continental lines. With the coming of the war the hopes of the builders of these lines were not realized, and they were eventually acquired by what is known to-day as the Canadian National Railways, which, operating 24,000 miles of line, is the largest system on the American continent.

From the humble beginning of a century ago with only 16 miles of track, Canada's railroads have led the advance of settlement throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion and have grown into a tremendous extension of lines spread over the country like a web, with telegraph and express services, chains of modern hotels, and fleets of passenger and freight vessels linking Canada with all parts of the world.

Making Map Of Mars

Famous Astronomer's Work Being Completed By His Widow

The monumental work of making a map of Mars, begun more than 50 years ago by the famous astronomer, Camille Flammarion, is being completed by his widow.

Madame Gabrielle Flammarion, who was the second wife of "the poet of the skies," works 15 hours a day to complete her late husband's life work. The observatory in which she works is in a garden where he buried the bodies of her husband and his first wife.

Every night, when conditions permit, Mme. Flammarion focusses her powerful telescope on the red planet, studying all its phases and taking innumerable photographs. When atmospheric conditions are bad, she works at her charts of the planet, filling in the unknown spaces. It is said that she knows the "canals" of Mars better than she knows the streets of Juvisy, the Paris suburb where she lives.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 21

DAVID (THE GREAT-HEARTED)

Golden text: Not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others. Philippians 2:4.

Lesson: I Samuel 28:12-17; II Samuel 12:3-7; David 17.

Devotional reading: John 17:1-10.

Explanations and Comments

David Spares Saul's Life. I Samuel 28:12-17. David himself reconnoitered the place where Saul was reported encamped, and found him asleep surrounded by his followers and within a barricade made by encircling wagons. He returned to his own men and asked, "Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp?" Abishai, the son of David's sister, was chosen to go with him. They found the king still sleeping within the barricade of wagons, with his spear, the symbol of royalty, thrust into the ground by his head. "God hath delivered up these enemy into their hands this day," said Abishai as he begged permission to kill Saul with his own sword. But David forbade. "Who can put forth his hand against Jehovah's anointed and be guiltless?" he asked. There was a sacredness attached to Saul's office, though David could not honor the man he could honor the king.

With a solemn oath, "as Jehovah liveth," David declared that God would carry out his own purpose.

Saul should meet his death as God willed, not as he, David, willed; Saul would die by a sudden stroke, or meet his death in battle (as he eventually did); God forbid that he should kill him. David's duty it was to watch over the king's life. "Who art thou that thou shouldst advise against the king's life?" Wherefore then hast thou not kept watch over my lord the king? For there came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord." How these words must have angered Abner! "The thing is not done, as thou has done," David continued; "Ye are worthy to die, because ye have not kept watch over your lord, Jehovah anointed. And now see where the king's spear is, and the cruse of water that was at his head." With these words the objects were evidently held aloft as evidence of the fact that he who had taken them away from the side of the king could easily have taken the king's life instead.

Saul recognized David's voice, and was evidently startled when he asked him why he persisted in pursuing him. He, David, had been driven away from the land of Israel. "I am not a violent man," he said, "I am a peaceful man." "The king of Israel is come out to seek a sea, as when one doth hunt a partridge on the mountains," he said.

Then said Saul: "I have sinned; behold I have put the foot; and have erred exceedingly." For the moment Saul was sincere, his better self was evidently his master, and he promised that he would not harm David. When Tasso told that he had a fair opportunity taking advantage of a very bitter enemy he replied: "I wish not to plunder him, but there things I wish to take away from him: his honor, his wealth, nor his life—but his ill-will."

Pocket Knife For Dolls' House

Tiny Gift For Queen Mary Made From Steel 115 Years Old

The Queen is adding to the Queen's Dolls' House at Windsor Castle a tiny pocket-knife, the blade of which weighs one-hundredth part of an ounce, or the equivalent of the weight of seven penny stamps. But it cuts as well as a full-size knife.

It is made from steel produced by Parady one hundred and fifteen years ago. Sir Robert Hadfield came into possession of some of this steel and conceived the idea of having a number of miniature knives made from it.

Many distinguished people have accepted these knives, including the Prince of Wales, Signor Mussolini and President Roosevelt.

The Queen saw one of the knives in a shop, where a number of Parady exhibits were on view, and was immediately interested.

When Sir Robert heard of her majesty's interest, he asked her to accept one, which she did, sending him a coin in exchange, according to tradition that the gift of a knife "cuts friendship" or brings some other form of bad luck.

Little Journeys In Science

PHOTOGRAPHY

(By Gordon H. Great, M.A.)

Photography enables man to preserve a record of events by means of pictures. Besides being an interesting hobby, it is of great practical use and has become a valuable scientific tool. Many important advances of recent years in science have been made from the use of photography to record the phenomena studied.

Taking a photograph usually involves the making of two pictures, the negative and the print. The negative is generally made on a supporting sheet of glass or celluloid. The print or finished picture is made on paper.

The supporting celluloid, or glass plate, is covered with a layer of gelatin emulsion in which there are very small particles (known in science as colloids) of creamy crystals of silver bromide and silver iodide. In the case of negatives these particles may be from eight to twelve one hundred thousandths of an inch in diameter. For prints, however, the particles are about one-fourth this size.

When the plate so prepared is exposed to light, the image of some object is formed upon it, the silver bromide undergoes a complicated change which depends on the exposure. Too long or too short an exposure will prevent us from obtaining the proper contrast of light and shade. In this way an image of the object photographed is produced upon the plate. This image is invisible and is therefore called latent. It can be made visible by the process of developing.

To develop the image the exposed plate is immersed in a solution called a developer which contains a chemical compound known as a reducing agent. This substance changes the silver compounds, on which the latent image is formed (within a reasonable time many hours in which action has been started by the light, into very small particles of metallic silver. The silver so formed is deposited in the form of a black film which sticks closely to the plate. It is these black particles of silver which make up the dark part of the picture. The silver compounds which were not immediately acted on by the developer must be removed, or they will be changed to silver and thus the picture would be ruined.

To remove the unchanged silver compounds the developed picture is placed in a solution called a fixer, which contains a solution of a chemical known as sodium thiosulfate. This is commonly as hypo. The unchanged silver salts in the gelatin dissolve in the fixing solution. The plate is then washed with water to free it. The plate is now called the negative because it is the reverse of the original. It is represented by dark silver and where the original was dark the negative has been washed clear.

The reverse of the original is prepared in almost the same way as the negative plate. The negative is placed upon a piece of paper exposed to the light so that the light must pass through the negative before striking the paper. The least light comes through where the negative is darkest and hence this part will be the lightest part of the picture when the silver is removed.

Light passes through the lighter parts of the negative and strikes the sensitive silver bromide on the paper and this part on developing will be dark. The print is thus the reverse of the negative and as the lights and shades correspond with the original it is called a positive. The positive is sometimes changed by a process called toning.

Smallest County In England Wants Protection Against Speeding Cars

For the twelfth year in succession there has been no assize court held in the county of Rutland, England. True, it is the smallest county in the country, the population being 17,400, mostly farming people, but it is quite remarkable to have no cases serious enough for a judge to deal with.

And yet the county authorities have asked that the police force be increased. There are 17 men now, and one recruit. The authorities want another 10. The reason is that so many motorists go scorching across the county breaking the speed laws which keep the police force busy and the magistrates from stagnating for lack of something to do, that another policeman is needed to cope with offenders.

If it were not for the motorists, the present force of 17 policemen and one recruit would be about 17 too many.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Rightly Named

At last we learn what "Fekos" means with relation to tea. The word is said to be the Chinese for "white hair." Neal O'Hara, who makes the explanation in the New York Post, says "that's what's on the leaves of Pekoe tea—a light down that looks like white hair."

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-bell, a gray, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture, a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. They are met at the railway station by Columbine Nelson, who in turn introduces Mark and Matthew Adams, two neighbors of Aunt Columbine, and the party set out for Pine Ridge, which village causes dismay to both Nancy and Jack because of its dilapidated appearance and general look of poverty. Nancy and Jack are shown to the rooms they are to occupy, and both the young people consider the furniture and decorations hateful and, contrasting the present quarters with their luxurious home in Boston, wonder if they can endure the change for any length of time. Aunt Columbine tells why she wrote the letter to them, and relates some of her early experiences at Pine Ridge and the hostile Indians and forest fire, of her father's hunt for gold, and of her mother's splendid spirit, but frail body, which could not endure the strain of pioneer life.

No Go On With The Story

There followed a silence until Cousin Columbine, exclaiming, "Dear me! Here I am dwelling on the past like an old woman, when what I started out to tell you was why I wrote that idiotic letter. You see, my mother instilled into me the knowledge that we came of gentle people—finer people, perhaps, than some of our good neighbors." She was an orphan, with no near relatives of her own; but she was very proud of the Nelson connections, and always kept us up to certain standards. If we lived in a cabin with a dirt floor, at least the windows were spotless curtains at the windows, and we ate off a white cloth—a clean one too! I think her dream was to send me East for an education; and long as they lived she corresponded with Father's parents, hoping they might have neglected to do himself. Later she wrote down the names of the younger members of his family, among them your Grandfather Nelson's, Father's half-brother, telling me that if I were left alone and needed help, I was to appeal to them."

"Did you ever have to?" queried Nancy.
The old lady shook her head.
"But I kept in touch with them, as Mother would have wished. Many have died, of course; for Father was so much older than his half-brother that he was almost of another generation."

"It must seem strange never to have seen any of your own people," commented Jack.

"Not only strange," said Cousin Columbine, "but it was nothing to me that address which caused me to make a resolution to see some one belonging to me—some one of my own blood, before I died."

"But why didn't you go East for a visit?" questioned the boy, forgetting the consideration he had felt at this idea when, weeks before, Aunt Louise had read aloud the letter from their distant relative.

"Because," responded the astute old lady, "I was not sure of a welcome! I realized that I was nothing to my Eastern cousins but a bit of family history—a queer old woman, perhaps, who was born in a covered wagon, and whose life had been lived in a little Colorado town. Besides, I dreaded to be away from home, even temporarily. My roots go deep, like the roots of an old tree that has never been transplanted. I admit I toyed with the idea; but gave it up; and the next thing was to get some of you to come to me."

She paused, and Jack said, smiling: "But how did you happen to pick out Nancy?"

"I could hardly expect the older members of the family to drop their work and come at the whim of a cousin whom they had never seen, could I? Besides, I had a yearning for some one young. But I've read about these modern girls, Nancy, and was just a bit afraid. Suppose, I asked myself, suppose I get her out here and find she is one of those—those flappers?"

Both young people gave way to laughter, the word sounded so strange on the old lady's lips.

"Do you see now," asked Cousin Columbine, "why I wrote that letter?"

"You mean," said Jack with sudden inspiration, "that no flapper would have been willing to put up with such a situation. But a girl like Nancy, would, I was sure, be glad to help out a poor old lonely cousin. So I made the job as unattractive as I could. It's true that Aurora and I do everything my way; and that often I'm desperate for some one to take a stitch for me, since I loathe the very sight of a needle, and always did. Oh, there was enough truth in that letter so it didn't lie very heavily on my conscience! And when I read it over, I said to myself: 'Cousin Columbine, one but a good, sensible, old-fashioned girl would consider this proposition for a minute; and you don't want the other kind.' So I mailed the letter."

The room was silent for a moment. Nancy's cheeks flamed, not solely from her close proximity to an air-tight stove. What would Cousin Columbine think if she knew how much that proposition seemed to her—that nothing in the world save Dad's financial losses would have made her give it a second thought—that she wouldn't have considered it even if Jack hadn't thought out this scheme and put it through while she was asleep? And when I read it, I said: 'I didn't.' Nancy knew she was sailing under false colors, and didn't like it. She even avoided meeting her brother's eyes as she responded: 'I'm afraid you'd be awfully disappointed in me just the same.'

"No," asserted Miss Columbine briskly: "I either like a person at first sight, or I don't like them. Been that way always. I'll admit you look rather ornamental; but that's nothing against you if there are brains in that pretty head of yours, and I don't doubt that, you being a Nelson. As for your brother, his brains were evident in the letter he sent me. Back in my father's day he would have been a pioneer."

Nancy laughed.
"I can see Jack driving a covered wagon, Cousin Columbine."

"You don't have to in these days of automobiles. But he's got the spirit, and that's what counts, my dear."

Jack flushed now, not being as sure as Cousin Columbine that he possessed the courage of his forefathers.

"When do I go to work?" he questioned, in an effort to change the conversation.

The old lady hesitated, and then said: "Here's my strong conviction: When I sent that telegram I had a job for you on the McKenzie ranch over Divide way; but the next day Mrs. MacKenzie telephoned that her nephew from Boulder wanted the place for all. Don't look distressed, Jack. You'll have a job before the week is up. I hoped the Adams would have something for you to do, but there are so many boys in the family they seldom hire outside help."

Jack was frowning a little. He said: "I must get something as soon as possible, Cousin Columbine. I don't want to sponge on you for board."

"Fiddlersicks!" she retorted. "This is the first time I've had company in fifty years. But I've asked Mark Adams to be on the lookout, and he'll find something if anybody can. He's smart as a whip; and a good boy into the bargain. All the Adams boys are good. I've always said that if Eve Adams isn't much of a cook, she's a grand success as a mother. Four sons, and every one a credit to the name."

"Eve!" laughed Nancy. "How did she ever dare to marry a man named Adam?"

"Because," replied the old lady with a twinkle, "she'd set her heart on doing just that thing—always said that when she found an Adam she was going to rope him. What she wanted was to find one with Adam for his first name; but when John Adam came along she snapped him up—at least, that's the way she puts it. Eve was a Denver girl. Her father made considerable of a fortune in gold in 1875, and lost it as many others did just then. After years of hardships, so much money went to their heads. Eve's father bought stock in fraudulent companies, and when the bubble collapsed—well, he collapsed with it, you might say."

"Were they left with nothing at all?"

"Practically, but Eve's uncle in the East had money, and gave the girl an education. She was in Boston for three years; and on her way home she met John Adam on the train. He was going to California for his health; but when he saw Eve he decided that his health would be much use to him in California, if she was in Colorado. You needn't grieve, Jack. It was just like that—love at first sight. And when she found his name was Adam, that settled it."

"Did he get well?" asked Nancy.

"Mercy yes! As for the boys—you've seen two of 'em. They don't look like invalids."

"And there are two more?"

Cousin Columbine nodded.

"Luke's eighteen, and John will be—"

"You don't mean," gasped Nancy, "that they're really named like that?"

"No, indeed. Luke and John. Jack rocked with mirth, and Cousin Columbine's eyes lighted.

"Indeed they are. Folks at Pine Ridge are used to 'em and never think about it; but I dare say it sounds queer to outsiders. That was Eve's doing. She's sort of fastidious and dreamy. But she's a wonderful woman and her husband worships the ground she walks on. I wish I could have got you a job there, Jack. They're fine people the Adams. Goodness gracious, children! It's almost eleven o'clock! I haven't sat up so late since 1902 when the schoolhouse burned down and Aurora pounded on the door to wake me up on her way to the fire. Breakfast at seven. We'd better be getting settled for the night."

It had, Nancy admitted, as she suggested down under the heavy patchwork quilt, been an interesting evening. After all, she wouldn't write that letter to her father—not yet, anyway.

CHAPTER IX.

More than two weeks slipped by with no sign of a job for Jack. This troubled the boy, though Cousin Columbine insisted that he more than earned his board by chopping firewood—new work to Jack, though when his sister condescended with him one afternoon, he declared he enjoyed it.

"But just the same, Nancy," he added, lowering his voice that Aurora was peeping, "seeing as an open window, shouldn't hear, 'I'm tired. I've got to earn some money; I've got to earn some money; body round here needs a ranch hand? Mark's been inquiring everywhere and hasn't got so much as a bite. Say?' (tearing off his sweater and tossing it upon the ground), 'can you believe it's December first?'"

Nancy couldn't. There was a tang to the air, but the day seemed more like late fall than winter; and the sky was as blue as it is possible for a sky to be.

"I think," Nancy confided as she perched precariously on the chopping block, "that this bright sunshine keeps us from being homesick. Since that first afternoon I've had only a few twinges; though I rather dread the time when we're settled down and you away somewhere. Cousin Columbine says we ought to be seeing some of the points of interest around here. I'm going to climb that hill off to the north. Do you want to come?"

Jack glanced at the wood pile.

"Can't just now." (As she ran along alone, Sis. Look here!) (as she started off), "haven't you got anything but those silk stockings?"

"That's exactly what I asked her this morning," Aurora's voice came through the open window. "Like as not that handsome pair of hose will be full of runs when you get back, Nancy Nelson. Why not borrow a pair of Miss Columbine's black cottons?"

Jack was obliged to hide a grin at a vision of his fastidious sister in cotton stockings; and Nancy replied, almost impatiently: "Oh, see here, Aurora, didn't Juanita have on silk stockings at the post office this morning?"

"If she did, I'll paddle that girl when I get home," asserted the good woman. "Juanita Tubbs wearin' silk stockings in the mornin'! What's the world comin' to?"

"Mercy!" gasped Nancy. "Have I got Juanita into trouble? I hope not. Next time we go down to the Springs, Aurora, I'll buy some woolen sport hose. I thought I packed a pair, but can't find them. Now don't worry any more on that subject. How do I reached that hill—the one with the pine trees on it?"

Derelicts Cause Trouble

Wrecked Ships Sometimes Drift For More Than Year

A derelict fleet of wrecks has caused no fewer than sixteen serious collisions, resulting in the loss of 300 lives, in the last five years. Recently, the United States Hydrographic Bureau black-blatted fifty hulks which are wandering aimlessly in the Atlantic, off the American coast. Among them were found a windjammer, whose sails bore a single-cabbed ketch from Marseilles, and, most astonishing of all, a fishing smack with a quantity of live fish in her trawls. The authorities are now considering the most effective means of destroying them. The tenacity with which these wrecks cling to the surface, long after being abandoned, is remarkable. A few even defy assaults by bombs and cordite.

Dramatically abandoned in 1923, the Governor Parr, instead of sinking instantly as her crew supposed, proceeded to keep her masts above water for the next two years. She became such a menace to shipping that a boat was sent to bring her home to the scrap yard. But the old wreck was reluctant to leave the ocean. A storm sprang up, the tow rope snapped, and thus she wandered off on her homesome again. Four months later, after a second executioner had watched her blazing fiercely, she was sighted three times in one week!

Another hardy wanderer, the Wyer Sargent, whose crew were picked up by a Swedish vessel, off Cape Hatteras, was sighted during the next eighteen months by twenty-seven ships. Once she appeared 600 miles off the Azores, and on the last occasion 900 miles off the Bermudas. It was estimated that this derelict had twice crossed the line, and the Atlantic once—making a voyage of 8,000 miles.

When a few winters ago, the Dum Kirk brig, Nerina, overturned in a squabbling sea off the Scilly Isles, six men were imprisoned in her cabin. Their first thought was to smash a hole through the floor—in that case the roof—but, fortunately, the skipper's better sense prevailed for the rush of air thus created would immediately have sent the brig like a stone to the bottom. After a week of hideous imprisonment, the Nerina suddenly split under with a terrific crash, and the six starved men found themselves miraculously wrecked on the shore of the Scilly Isles.

To Replace Cotton

Fabric From Wood Pulp Coming On The Market

The London Daily Express quotes Dr. E. F. Armstrong, one of Great Britain's leading industrial chemists that cotton will be replaced by a fabric made from woodpulp.

"Scientists have now discovered a way whereby staple fibre from wood pulp can be made into a fabric on machinery now in use in the cotton mills," the Express quoted Dr. Armstrong. "New factories to supply this material are already being built in Lancashire."

Saving deposits in Germany are showing a sharp increase.

Memorial To Hall Caine

Beautiful Monument On Isle Of Man Is Completed

The tombstone of Sir Hall Caine and his wife in Manxhold churchyard, Isle of Man, has been completed after three years' preparation. It consists principally of a cross twelve feet high carved after the pattern of the ancient cross erected to the memory of the first Scandinavian bishop of Man, who was buried in Manxhold about 1060. This cross is ornamented by intricate interlacing in the Celtic style designed by Archibald Knox, an eminent Manx artist. He died before he had drawn all his sketches and they were completed by a disciple, Miss Tuckfield, secretary of the Knox Arts and Crafts Guild in London. Another section of the monument contains carved portraits of leading characters in Hall Caine's novels. For the character of John Storm in "The Christian" the portrait is that of Mr. Matheson Lang, who acted the part in the stage version. Pete, the hero of "The Manxman," was taken by a young Douglas fisherman. Around the base of the monument are verses from the hymn, "Abide With Me," and another inscription, "Slumbering in the deep solitude of the hills he loved so well," is a quotation from Hall Caine's article on Wordsworth's tomb.

AFTER LOVE

Love may come a little while
When care wanes, or strife;
Love may walk with you a mile
And an April hour beguile,
Only, in your life.

But forever and a day,
Echoing love's song,
After love has passed away,
After gods have turned to clay,
Memories will throng.

Memories of love's kiss, love's glance,
These will wake anew,
With their aura of romance
Bringing back, through change and
Joy again to you!

To Stabilize Currency

Large Fund Said To Be Available For This Purpose

The London Daily Herald says that Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, has pledged £375,000,000 (about $1,852,500,000) to bring about world stabilization of currency without government agreements.

The money is the publicly-owned British exchange equalization fund, to be used, Norman said, "for the support of almost any international currency which shows weakness."

The Bank of England entered into an agreement at a secret meeting at Basel, Switzerland, "without previous consultation with the treasury," the paper states.

Canadian exports of canned fruit to Great Britain were 28 per cent greater from January 1 to March 16, 1935, than during the corresponding period of 1934. The principal increases were in canned apples, pears and peaches.

Little Helps For This Week

"Who is among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of His servant, that walketh in darkness and hath no light, let him trust in the name of the Lord and stay upon his God." Isaiah 50:10.

When we in darkness walk,
Nor feel the heavenly name,
Then is the time to trust our God,
And rest upon His name.

He has an especial tenderness for those who are in the dark and have no light, and His heart is glad when they say "I went to my Father." For He sees thee through all the gloom through which thou cannot see Him. Say to Him, "I am Thy child. Forsake me not." Then fold the arms of faith and wait in quietness until the light goes up in the darkness. Think of something you should do and go and do it, if it be but the sweeping of a room, the preparing of a meal, or a visit to a friend, heed not your feelings, but do your work.

Life Of Parliaments

Would Limit Length To Minimum Of Five Years

That five years should be the minimum effective life of parliaments in the empire was one of the suggestions made by Sir Arthur Welgall, chairman of the council, presiding over a luncheon tendered by the Royal Empire society to the delegates from empire parliaments meeting in London.

He also suggested civil servants in Britain and the Dominions should be inter-changeable; and that both in Britain and the Dominions the governments should include a definite number of ministers without portfolio.

With a parliament of less than five years, said Sir Arthur, the ministry was standing in the stirrups and looking for an election rather than settling down in the saddle. (Australian and New Zealand parliaments are limited to three years.)

THE HOME TOWN EDITOR

You hardly let out your first yell on this terrestrial sphere before the local editor ordered the fact of your arrival announced to a baby-living world.

When you reached the age of three or four and had your first real birthday party with invited guests, your friend, the editor, told all and sundry who was there and what a fuss they made over you.

When you got on the honor roll at grade school he let all your admiring friends and neighbors know about it. If you got into any minor scrapes he apparently forgot about them as soon as he was told, for he wanted to play up the things which might make you great.

All through your high-school course he was keenly watching to see if you did anything worthy of note in athletics, letters or debate. And when you finally graduated he again seized upon the opportunity to put your name in print.

If you decided to go to work then, instead of going to college, he heralded the fact in such a manner that made any prospective employers realize that here was an ambitious lad who wasn't leaning unnecessarily on the folks. He wanted all whom it might concern to know that if work was to be done, here was a live-wire all set.

When the supreme object of your heart's desire was won your editor friend seemed to know about it almost as soon as the "lucky" girl and warned all other aspirants to her sole-attention to lay off as he printed the announcement of your engagement. Once more you were the conquering hero, or thought so. The girl may have had other ideas on the subject.

If after that you accomplished anything worthy of note, the world was told in letters bold: "Home Town Boy Makes Good."

When these near and dear to you were, by death, taken out on "The Great Adventure," the Chief of the Columns apparently forgot their vices, and proceeded to laud their virtues and remind the world of their fine family connections—including you.

When illness overtook you, he let all the neighbors know, so that they may have the power of their prayers could be added to the forces of medicine.

And someday (should he perchance out-live you as he has so many others) he, being kind and faithful unto the end, will once more use good paper and ink for you. He will probably tell mankind far and wide that one has passed who was a useful and worthwhile addition to the race, that you have gone to join the glorious company who have become the "guests of God."

Yes, from the cradle of birth to the casket of death, the home town editor is your friend. He puts you on the map, and if you are worthy, helps to keep you there.—Ez.

LAUGH—AND THEN

There recently walked into relief headquarters in a certain city a woman who said she had a complaint to make. Asked to state it, she replied: "Well, my husband and I just can't get along on what we are getting from this relief. We've talked it over several times, and he says that if you won't give us more he is going to go out and try to find a job."

After you get through chuckling over this, you might sit down and think about it. For it constitutes a homely illustration of a state of mind that is becoming far too common for our national welfare.

All of us admit that there are persons living on relief who will never live elsewhere as long as relief lasts. Just what proportion of our unemployed can be listed in this class is a matter over which opinions differ widely. But it is far greater than it should be. Just look around and see for yourself. Then try to figure what the end is going to be.

COPYRIGHTED PLATFORM

For the first time in the history of Alberta, if not the world, the leader of a political party has copyrighted his platform.

Last week Mr. Aberhart issued a little booklet "Social Credit Manual," "Social Credit as applied to the Province of Alberta."

We do not think that Mr. Aberhart needed to fear anyone stealing any of the planks of his fantastic platform, for as yet the ordinary citizen has not been able to understand social credit as applied to practical purposes. The theory is very beautiful, but as the pamphlet says, "it does present numerous and peculiar problems."

It would appear that Mr. Aberhart, in copyrighting his booklet, perhaps did so with a view to preventing the press of the province quoting from the booklet—and thereby giving their readers the exact wording of Mr. Aberhart's wonderful plan of economic—and also preventing them, publicly debating the theory as presented by the printed platform of the Social Credit Leader.

Mr. Aberhart has from his first entrance publicly into the field of politics repented, and resented most bitterly, any criticism. This has been shown from time to time by his attacks on those who have differed and do still differ with him.

The Province would have liked very much to have given its readers some quotations from the Social Credit Manual, but to do so would probably lead to legal proceedings.

The booklet can be purchased for 10c a copy, and we would urge every citizen to buy one and read it carefully (we will not charge the Social Credit Party anything for this advertisement). We are confident that the more carefully the booklet is read the surer will be the defeat of the Social Credit party at the coming election.—Innisfail Province.

UNDERNOURISHED FOOL
WOMEN OF ALBERTA

On Sunday, June 30th, over the radio Mr. William Aberhart read from a letter of one of his ardent followers a paragraph which referred to the United Farm Women of Alberta as "The Undernourished Fool Women of Alberta."

"Mr. Aberhart in putting this over the air and in no way repudiating the expression evidently gave it his hearty endorsement."

This then is the opinion Mr. Aberhart has of all those splendid women who have pioneered this great province and are now manifesting a keen intelligent and lively interest in its affairs and who have not been able to see eye to eye with Mr. Aberhart in his fantastic economic theories with its "peculiar problems."

Our farm women are not undernourished. Our farm women will measure up intellectually with those of any other group found in the cities or towns and are showing a much more serious interest in the affairs of state than are their urban sisters.

That a public man aspiring to the office of Premier of this Province should so think and speak of our farm women is a disgrace and a public apology is due from Mr. Aberhart to the farm women of Alberta.—Innisfail Province.

An exchange remarks: The Alberta Legislature today, July 11, is dead and at present has no successor. This is a unique situation in the history of the province.

WHY PICK ON THE SCOTCH?

Now that the lesson in geography and history has been completed, we will turn to another very important subject. For some time many of you fellows must have paid attention to the slams delivered at the Scotch by the exponents of Social Credit, reaching up from the rank and file to the much misunderstood gentleman who is guiding the barque of Prosperity to our shores.

It is quite alright to tell stories on the Scotch, but when anyone asserts that the Scotch are not the salt of the earth, the national honor is at stake, and, to prevent civil war, the farmer intends to suppress this form of iniquity without delay. How? Why? men, our modus operandi will be so simple it cannot fail.

Hereafter we'll attend all Social Credit meetings in the district armed with bagpipes.

We'll fill them up with air at the elevator, muzzle them securely, and when the guys start to hand the Scotch the raspberry, we'll let out a sound like a banshee wailing on the bogs of Tipperary at midnight.

If that don't get their goats, we'll start playing in earnest, and, aided by two compatriots who specialize in the music of bass drums and trombones, we'll either have the audience fleeing in terror or performing in a frolicsome mood the good old Highland Fling. Liberals and Conservatives also beware!—Ex.

Have You Met?

W. S. PEARCE,
Pursuer of the Empress of Britain

Mr. Pearce is one of the best-known pursuers in trans-Atlantic service, and during his long service with the Canadian Pacific has made friends with thousands of regular travellers. He was many years in the Empress of Scotland, and has been round the world so often that places like Bombay and Hong-Kong are as familiar to him as the rose-filled garden of his Southampton home.

During the extreme heat of the early part of the week, fish had to come down from the low-water streams to the big streams to get a drink of water. In fact, some weren't even satisfied with that, and undertook to climb where snow could be seen on the mountain tops.

One of the funniest sights we have seen in our day was witnessed at Henderson Lake, Lethbridge, on Friday last, and you can picture it yourself. A man, about 5 feet ten inches in height and about 95 inches girth, entered the shallow water where little tots were bathing. The water was eleven inches deep. He laid down and rolled, and at no time was there less than two-thirds of his anatomy above the surface. Ladies witnessing the scene wondered if that puffed-up creature would sink in deeper water, and Lawyer Beattie remarked that he'd like to use him on his fish line as a float the next time he went fishing in the Gap.

IF I SHOULD DIE TONIGHT!

(By Ben King)

We owe a guy four dollars. We're going to give it to him since we read this. It hits close to home.

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and say,
Weeping and heartach o'er my lifeless clay—

If I should die tonight,
And you should come in deepest grief and woe—
And say: "Here's that ten dollars that I owe,"

I might arise in my large white cravat
And say, "What's that?"
If I should die tonight—
And you should come to my cold corpse and kneel,
Clasping my bier to show the grief you feel—

I say, if I should die tonight
And you should come to me, and there and then
Just even hint at paying me that ten,
I might arise the while,
But I'd drop dead again.

The cost of living, which reached its peak in 1920, has declined; but on the 1913 basis it is still much higher than the price of gasoline. In 1934 the cost of living was 20.7 per cent. higher but the price of gasoline was 28.4 per cent. lower than in 1913. The data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

LIVING COSTS MORE BUT GASOLINE COSTS LESS

THE cost of living in Canada in 1934 was approximately 21 per cent. higher and the price of gasoline 28 per cent. lower than in 1913. The price of gasoline never rose to as high a peak as did the cost of living. Since 1920 gasoline prices have declined almost continuously to the present low level.

Imperial Oil has always sought for economical ways of doing business and has always passed on to the consumer the benefits of such economies. Imperial Oil operates on a very small profit and in 1934 earned an average of slightly more than one-half of one cent per gallon on gasoline.

Not only is gasoline cheaper than ever—it is better than ever. Imperial Oil research laboratories played a leading part in developing fuels for modern motors. Imperial gasoline of 1935 is a far better gasoline than that of 1913 yet it sells at a price considerably lower.

HOW TO MAKE ICED TEA

Infuse six heaping teaspoons of Salada Black Tea in a pint of fresh boiling water. After six minutes strain liquid into two-quart container. While hot, add 1½ cups of powdered sugar and 1½ cups of ice cubes. Stir well and add 1½ cups of cold water. Do not allow tea to cool before adding the cold water; otherwise liquid will become cloudy. Serve with chilled ice.

Short Life-Stories

Now and then the writer who is responsible for this column each week feels impelled, instead of writing an article himself, to pass on something he has read which may prove helpful and encouraging to others. This is one of those times when two or three short stories from real life seem to call for repeating.

There has been a lot of talk, the last few years, about how the worker is exploited under capitalism. Not much has been said about the other side of the picture. Let us tell then of a man, a small manufacturer, who, when the crash came, employed twenty people. His business has shrunk during the depression, but the same twenty are still on his payroll. What is more, he is still paying them the same wages. He has done this by ruthless cutting of his own expense, and by dipping into his own capital. He has carried the people who work for him as a personal responsibility. He doesn't like to talk about it. When questioned, he merely shrugs his shoulders and insists that he has done nothing extraordinary. "It's like horses," he says. "When you come in after a hard ride, you see that your mount is fed and watered, don't you? I can't do less for the people who work for me. I can't sleep when I know they aren't sleeping well. That's all there is to it." Such men do more toward making this a better world than a thousand laws, enforced by a million policemen. The Golden Rule is the one code that seems to work.

Real life beats anything the fiction writer can invent. Take the case of another man who used to be branch manager for a big concern. He had an impressive suite of offices, and a number of people working under him. He belonged to the best clubs, drove a big car, and lived well. As the years passed, he grew to take his position for granted. He began to pay more attention to outside interests and less to his job. Times grew hard, but he still took things easily. The home office was troubled. His long-distance broad, seemed to have no effect on him. Finally it was decided that he must be discharged. But the boss, remembering his long years of service, intervened, and, in compromise, he was recalled to the home office. There he was given a desk among the city salesmen. It must have been a hard dose for him to swallow, but if he felt humiliated, he did not show it. He never referred to his former grandeur as a branch manager. Always smiling, he was down earlier than any of the cubs, and stayed later. He took what leads were given to him—most of them considered too hopeless for a good man to bother with—and did his best. It was soon forgotten that he had been demoted. He was accepted as just another salesman. No one paid much attention to him. The younger men rather smiled at the zeal of "old" Blank, as they called him. When not on the street, he was always telephoning somebody, or busily thumbing over his prospect list. In the front office, however, a strange thing was noted. Blank's sales began to climb. Customers—big ones—appeared out of the blue, insisting that they must deal with Mr. Blank. The other day, Blank was made General Sales Manager.

It is doubtful if there is any better cure for the weariness of spirit which comes from endless discussion of economic or disputation over such things as politics, than an hour or two with a microscope. For trifling sum of money, one gains admission to a world full of new and fascinating things. In a single drop of water, scooped from the nearest ditch, there is literally endless entertainment. After a time in this world, with its breathless dramas and life-and-death struggles between incredible creatures, the real world seems curiously remote and unreal. One returns to it refreshed, and with a saner point of view. There is the man whose whole life collapsed in disaster. He saw nothing ahead, and as he stood one night in the bow of the ship—which was taking him back to the wreckage of his career, he resolved to throw himself into the dark waves. But he happened to glance up to the great arch of the skies, filled with timeless stars; and suddenly his own life, happy or otherwise, seemed oddly unimportant. He returned to his problems, solved many of them, built a new and successful career upon the ruins of the failure—and, incidentally, became famous as an astronomer.

This is the time of year when young men, just out of school and college, are trying to plan their futures. Many write to friends, asking advice. The advice given by one such friend to a young man was as follows: All I can answer is that if I were just starting out to hunt a career, I'd look for it as far away from the big cities as I possibly could. There's more glamour in city life—perhaps more of what is called "success". The money-making possibilities are greater. But from what I have been able to observe in my journey through this vale of tears, the small-town man gets the most fun out of life. He may earn less, in dollars, than his city cousin does; but his living costs less, and he has more time in which to enjoy the dollars he earns. If I had my life to live over, I think I'd start out by heading for a small community, and dig in there. Every now and then I'd visit a big city just to remind myself how smart I'd been to become a small-town fellow.

British Scientists To Spend Three Months In Arctic

Under the leadership of L. J. Wager, 14 members of the British East Greenland expedition left Aberdeen, Scotland, recently in Sir Ernest Shackleton's exploration ship, The Quest.

The Quest is manned by a crew of Norwegians. Four members of the expedition were accompanied by their wives.

The Hat Went Home

Story From Liverpool Could Be Used By Ripley

An astonishing hat trick was performed by a 77 miles an hour gale on Merseyside. A Bebbington (Birkenhead) man bought a new hat at a Liverpool shop, put it on his head, and carried his old hat in a paper bag. When he reached Bebbington station the wind lifted his new hat from his head and sent it sailing over the tops of the houses and out of sight. On reaching home he was amazed to find his new hat on the kitchen table. It had dropped in his backyard.

To Promote Highway Safety

Ontario To Cope With Rising Tide Of Automobile Accidents

To cope with the rising tide of deaths from automobile accidents in Ontario, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways and acting attorney-general, announced 12 constables had been added to the provincial police force, most of them detailed to the highway traffic patrol.

Provision for additional traffic police marked the latest step in Mr. McQuesten's campaign to promote highway safety. Possession of a driver's license has been made the basis for enforcing the traffic laws, said the minister, and he listed two other features of his safety campaign—police inspection of motor vehicles and equipment and an advertising campaign.

Departmental records showed 202 persons had been killed in automobile accidents during the first six months of this year, compared with 164 in the corresponding period of 1934. The June death toll was 44, an increase of 12 above the May total.

"A small fine does not quite meet the situation," said Mr. McQuesten. "We will get more attention to the law if we exercise freely the cancellation of the driver's license for a term."

Giant Air Cruiser

United States Army Air Corps To Test Out Machine

A giant "flying battle cruiser," claimed the fastest and longest range bombing plane ever built, will be tested soon by the United States army air corps at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Specifications demanded by the air corps included: A speed of 200 to 250 miles an hour at 10,000 feet altitude, an operating speed of from 170 to 220 miles an hour at the same altitude, endurance at operating speed of from 6 to 10 hours, and a speed ceiling of from 20,000 to 25,000 feet.

The aerial battle cruiser has a wing span of approximately 100 feet, length of 70 feet, height of 15 feet, and gross weight of about 15 tons.

Just a Coincidence

Science Of Deduction Came As A Shock To Bus Conductor

A remarkable experience befell Col. Foley when he was traveling along Oxford street in a bus and heard the conductor telling a passenger the names of the shops that originally stood on the site of a large store. Surmising that the man had probably delivered letters there Col. Foley asked him: "How long ago were you a postman?"

"How did you know I was a postman?" the conductor retorted. "Quite simple, my dear 'Watson,'" said the colonel.

The man who had evidently not read his "Sherlock Holmes," nearly fell off the bus. His name actually was Watson.

New Sister Ship For Empress Of Britain Is Projected

Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, said before sailing to Canada from Southampton recently a sister ship for the Empress of Britain would be built.

"We shall need a new liner of the same type as the Empress of Britain," Sir Edward said, "to give a balanced service."

He added that an order would be placed two years before withdrawal from service of the Empress of Australia and the question of replacing that liner would come up within the next few years.

Substitute For Wool

A process to turn silk into a wool substitute which may free Japan from wool imports is claimed to have been found by Tohei Sakamoto, 38, inventor. He has produced a fibre declared to possess the elasticity, lustre and strength of good grade wool. Use of the process would also raise the price of raw silk, a condition which is largely responsible for the depression in the agricultural communities.

Little Wheat On Royal Estate

The Sandringham estate of His Majesty King George contains about 3,500 acres. The method of cropping is very much in accordance with that common in the district. A considerable acreage of barley is grown, and also a considerable acreage of turnips and mangels; but comparatively little wheat. In recent years sugar beet and flax have both been tried with success.

An Amusing Incident

Guide In Westminster Hall Embarrassed By Touring Party

Presentation of loyal addresses of parliament to the King in Westminster Hall during recent jubilee celebrations has recalled an amusing incident in the same historic chamber when a party of Scottish fishermen were touring London.

The girls from the north were being taken through the building by a police officer who pointed to the plate indicating where Sir William Wallace, national hero of Scotland, was in 1306 tried and condemned to death for treason against the English to whom he declared he owed no allegiance.

Immediately the Scottish women, with much power and expression, broke out in the well-known ballad "Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bled." This was a most improper proceeding, of course, and the north was in a dilemma. His sympathies were with the women but his duty dictated either the suppression of the singing or the expulsion of the singers.

Without saying a word, the escort walked quietly away to look up a superior officer for instructions how to act in the matter. After some searching he found his officer and returned to the spot. As he had expected and wished, the singing was not true. The officer did not report the incident, the account of which has leaked out since the jubilee celebrations.

Find Indian Relics

Remains Of Two Indians Unearthed In Saskatchewan

One of the most interesting finds of the season, in Saskatchewan, is that of Professor Vigfusson, at old Pinkus crossing, near Rocanville, the remains of two Indians in shallow graves. These have been carefully lifted and sent to the history museum at the University of Saskatchewan.

One of the graves yielded only a few bones, some charred birch bark, and a few charred sticks. The other contained a complete skeleton of some Indian brave, in excellent state of preservation.

The body had been placed on its left side, facing west, and was just two feet below the surface of the ground. Thousands of colored beads of different shapes and sizes were found about the remains, also a large piece of flint and the rusted remains of what had been a hunting knife. There were also the bones of two small animals, possibly a squirrel and a mink, placed beside the body, as provisions on the long journey to the happy hunting grounds.

Professor Vigfusson has spent considerable time in the district gathering up historical data.—Regina Leader.

Keep Method Secret

Chinese Have Mysterious Way Of Holding An Autopsy

An ancient Chinese method of autopsy, known only to a closed group of practitioners, whose knowledge is handed down by word of mouth from generation to generation, has resulted in the release of the two sons of Chia Tehshun, who died 18 months ago.

On the basis of these findings of the method, known as "steam bones," the two sons have been freed of the suspicion of having murdered their father.

The body was exhumed and two "steam bones" experts attached to the Examination Department of the District Court were asked to perform an autopsy.

With the aid of yellow Chinese wine, some millet, and of vinegar, the experts were ready to announce the result of their investigation:

"Mr. Chiao met his death from hanging. However, it is clear that he had hanged himself, and was not hanged by his sons or by any other person."

There are several species of the caragana plant in Western Canada, but the one most commonly found and used very widely is the variety introduced from Siberia. The caragana is so hardy and vigorous, and adapts itself to such varied conditions of soil, that it must be considered a most valuable plant for field or garden shelter purposes.

For Prison Reform

Borstal System Is Recommended For Canada

After studying in detail application of the Borstal system in six English prisons, General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of Canadian penitentiaries, has reported to the Dominion government his opinion that similar training and treatment of youthful offenders can and ought to be put into effect in Canada.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, tabled General Ormond's report in the House of Commons and declared the system may be made effective in Canada within 60 days. No legislation and no extra money vote would be necessary but there would be some staff additions and extra buildings needed.

The Borstal system, forecast for Canada in the speech from the throne at parliament's opening in January, "is a combination of mental, moral, physical and industrial training of a strenuous kind," for convicts under the age of 21 years.

Selected penitentiary inmates under the age of 21 would be housed separately and made the subject of this training with a view to correcting criminal instincts and preparing the youth for more useful effort on discharge.

France Is Installing Penny-In-The-Slot Machines

Penny-in-the-slot radio sets for the home have been introduced in France. Instead of buying a set, it is possible to have installed free a high-powered set with a small slot machine attached.

On putting a franc into the slot 40 minutes' radio programme is assured. This may be either at a stretch or in several short programmes until the 40 minutes are exhausted. A maximum of ten francs may be put in at a time, thus ensuring nearly seven hours of music.

EXPANSION OF TRADE REQUIRED TO AID RECOVERY

Ottawa.—Expansion of trade rather than restriction of production is the need of the present if any substantial recovery from the world depression is to come about, in the opinion of Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons of Australia. With Premier R. B. Bennett on one side and former prime minister Sir Robert Borden on the other, Mr. Lyons addressed a luncheon meeting.

"I do not believe in restricting production of foodstuffs," said Mr. Lyons. "I believe the world can consume a lot more of the right kind of food than it now consumes. When Providence has given us an abundance of food it is wrong to cut across the ends of God and deprive people of foods which are essential to health and happiness."

Australia had made substantial recovery from the depression, said Mr. Lyons. The federal government had balanced its budget since 1932 although some of the states were still experiencing financial difficulties. Unemployment was decreasing, interest rates were down and trade was increasing moderately.

"We are not out of the woods yet," he said. "But we have set the stage to take the fullest and earliest advantage of any recovery that comes."

Australians did not hope for an even balance of trade with Canada because of special circumstances, but as the years went on they would like to see their exports to and their imports from Canada coming closer together without any decrease either way.

Alberta Elections

Flood Conditions May Delay Preparation Of Voters' List

Edmonton.—Alberta's general election date will not be announced until there is definite assurance that the northern flood situation has improved to the extent that preliminary work in preparing the voters' list can be completed within the required time, Premier Reid stated.

From Hugh A. Allen, minister of lands and mines, who went north to obtain definite information for the government concerning flood conditions, is now marked on the passenger train between Weyburn and Lesser Slave Lake.

At least five cabinet ministers have signified their intention to again seek office. They include Premier R. G. Reid, Hon. J. R. Lowe, Hon. J. F. Lymbury, Hon. J. J. McLean and Hon. H. W. Allen. Hon. Irene Parlby, minister without portfolio, will not stand for re-election. Others have not yet been nominated.

Liberals held the list with 55 official candidates. Next are Conservatives with 37. The U.P.A. government party has 32 selected with many nominating conventions to be held, and the Labor party has selected eight. There is one Independent. Social Credit forces, led by William Aberhart, of Calgary, declare they will contest all constituencies.

Peace River Floods

Continuous Heavy Rains Cause Serious Damage

Edmonton.—Continuing heavy rains in the Peace River district had brought flood waters near their peak of last week when serious damage was done. Traffic to the British Columbia Peace River block has been halted by washed out bridges and interrupted ferry service. Train service is at a standstill and plans for aerial delivery of mail are being made.

Latest flood is reported from Robb in the Edson, Alberta, district, where the Embarras river is on the rampage.

Power On Relief

Toronto.—Families on relief in Toronto are decreasing approximately 800 a week, Welfare Commissioner A. W. Laver announced. For the week ended July 6, the number of families receiving full relief was 19,177 compared with 19,686 at the same time last year.

To Run For President

Omaha, Neb.—"General" Jacob E. Coxey, 81, who advocated $50,000,000 inflation to give $100 to each unemployed person, was nominated to run for president by the handful of delegates attending the "national" Farmer-Labor party convention.

To Protect Population

Britain Takes Precaution Against Possible Air Raids

London.—A program for protecting Britain's population against air raids went to all local authorities in England, Scotland and Wales, accompanied by assurances "the need for these measures in no way implies risk of war."

The government already has made arrangements for an initial supply of respirators to be allotted partly for training in their use against gas and partly to build up reserves. It was announced the work would be begun along these lines.

Accumulation of reserve stocks of respirators and protective clothing for the use of those engaged in precautionary measures.

Building up of reserves of "bleach powder" for decontamination work. Probable establishment of an anti-gas school for civilians.

Use of the Red Cross and the order of St. John Ambulance Corps to assist in the enrollment and training of an anti-gas medical emergency corps.

Air raid warnings, lighting restrictions, rescue and salvage work were left entirely up to local authorities.

Foresees Stabilization

Possibility Predicted By Governor Of Bank Of France

Paris.—Jean Tannery, governor of the Bank of France, predicted "America, France and England soon will unite for stabilization."

Speaking at the American club luncheon, he said the United States aid in the recent French financial crisis was something for which "France will be forever grateful."

Tannery said that help indicated friendly feelings of the two countries and encouraged his confidence as to the possibility of stabilization which, he said, "will mark the end of the depression."

Calgary Stamped

United States Cowboys Have Winning Streak

Calgary.—United States cowboys came to the fore at the Calgary stamper, winning the North American bucking horse riding and the North American calf roping contests. "Buck" Buchanan of Boise, Idaho, took first prize in the bronk riding while second money went to "Hub" Whiteman of Fort Worth, Texas. Calf roping honors fell to Irbly Sturdy of Uteville, Colo., who had his animal rope and tied in 15.2 seconds. Ike Rude of Magnus, Okla., was second with a 20.1-5 second performance.

Farm Labor Shortage

Acute Situation Said To Exist In Rural Ontario

Ottawa.—An acute shortage of farm labor is being experienced in rural Ontario, according to government employment offices. The demand for experienced farm helpers exceeds the supply and many branches of the employment service of Canada in Ontario have long lists of jobs on file.

Besides the employment service of Canada the immigration and colonization department operates a placement bureau and reports the same condition.

Attends Luncheon

Prime Minister Of Australia Entertained At Ottawa

Ottawa.—Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons, of Australia, arrived in Ottawa just in time to attend a luncheon in his honor, arranged by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

Accompanied by Mrs. Lyons and members of his staff, he was met at the station by Mr. Bennett, Hon. R. B. Hanson, minister of trade and commerce, and Dr. O. D. Skelton, under-secretary of state for external affairs.

Home Industry

Nanking, China.—Hereafter all Chinese officials must wear no garments of any kind that are not made entirely from materials produced in China, according to a joint decision reached by the ministry of finance and the ministry of industry.

For Japanese Navy

Tokyo.—The Japanese navy is preparing to demand in the next budget an appropriation of 712,000,000 yen (about $178,480,000), which is 35 per cent above the current year's $30,000,000 yen, the largest in the nation's history.

Baden-Powell Bids Farewell

Expresses His Regret In Message At Leaving Canada

St. John, N.B.—Regret at leaving Canada, and pleasure because the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movement "is now on a footing for further expansion to extend its influence over the underprivileged youth of the country," were expressed here by Lord Baden-Powell, chief scout, in a farewell message to Canada.

At Boston the 78-year-old scout leader will join Lady Baden-Powell, chief guide, and his daughter, Hon. Betty. Another daughter, Hon. Heather, is accompanying Lord Baden-Powell. The last public appearance in the Dominion was made in Charlottetown, P.E.I.

At Boston they will attend a scout and guide rally, later returning to England and staying there only one day before leaving for a scout conference at Stockholm.

Vancouver Police Protection

Additional And Special Police Costs City $50,000

Vancouver.—Additional and special police employed this year have cost Vancouver $50,000, Mayor G. G. McGeer told the city council.

The funds have been obtained from unexpended bylaw balances.

"A policeman has been killed in Regina, and constant agitation is going on in Vancouver which may lead to a clash at any time," said Mayor McGeer. "Under these circumstances I feel that we are justified in taking every precaution."

THINK WARFARE IN ETHIOPIA IS NOW INEVITABLE

London, Eng.—London and Paris accepted warfare between Italy and Ethiopia as inevitable although the British government still hoped for some 11th hour development that would avert hostilities.

Grave concern for the future of the League of Nations and the whole laborious "collective security" system was expressed in both the British and French capitals, as diplomatic efforts to settle the dispute reach a complete impasse.

This was heightened by a report Ethiopia would demand immediate convocation of the league council.

Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador, was reported to have informed the British government Italy will be satisfied with no less than control of the Ethiopian hinterland, and fixing of an Italian political and trade zone of influence.

Rumors that the entire matter would be discussed at an extraordinary session of the League of Nations, were halted with the announcement by the league secretary, Joseph A. C. Avenol, that the problem would come before the league council July 25 in the ordinary course of events.

BLASTING THE LEDGE AT NIAGARA FALLS

An interesting photograph of the terrific dynamite blast which sliced 11,000 tons of rock from the historic Honeycomb Point at Niagara Falls and sent it tumbling into the Great Gorge 200 feet below. The ledge dynamited had been undermined by erosion and was considered a hazard to sightseers who crowded the edge to view the falls.

VISITS HOME

After spending fifty years in Canada, Dr. Seager Wheeler, famous wheat growing expert and former wheat king, has returned to his birthplace, Blackgang, Isle of Wight, England, for a visit. Born in a humble fisherman's cottage sixty-seven years ago, Dr. Wheeler started his interesting career at the age of 11 years.

Crop Conditions

At June 30, Given As One Point Lower Than At End Of May

Ottawa.—Condition of Canada's spring wheat crop as at June 30 was given as one point lower than at the end of May, in a crop report issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics. The condition was given as 98 per cent of the long-time average. A month ago it was 97 per cent. The slight reduction was due largely to damage sustained in southern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan.

In Saskatchewan and Alberta, the condition of the principal cereal crops on June 30, 1935, was reported as follows, with the figures for May 31, 1935, and June 30, 1934, within brackets:

Saskatchewan: Wheat 97 (97, 77); rye 97 (95, 78); barley 98 (95, 77); oats 97 (95, 78); flaxseed 95 (—, 76). Alberta: Wheat 93 (96, 92); oats 91 (94, 92); barley 92 (94, 94); rye 93 (102, 77); flaxseed 92 (—, 89).

To Reconstruct Moscow

Ten-Year Plan For Converting It Into Modern Capital

Moscow.—A 10-year plan for the reconstruction of Moscow, converting it into an ultra-modern capital for 5,000,000 inhabitants, was announced by Joseph Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia.

The new city will cover more than double the area of the present one, which has a population of 3,500,000. It will be surrounded by a six-mile-wide zone of forests and parks to assure the populace clean air and furnish places for outings.

The size of the famous Red Square will be doubled, broad new avenues laid out, huge new hotels erected and 125,000,000 square feet of new housing space provided if the goal of the plan is achieved.

Flood Followed By Fire

Hundreds Of Thousands Trapped In China When Dikes Collapse

Changteh, Hunan Province, China.—Fire followed flood as central China's rain-swollen rivers raged down to the sea, and famine stalked after.

With 25,000,000 persons in the path of the great Yangtze, and its toll of lives already counted in the hundreds, flood waters from the Yuan river and the Tung Ting lake besieging this city reached disaster stage.

Hundreds of thousands were trapped within the city walls as every dike outside, save one, collapsed. Fire broke out in various areas of the catastrophe, in which 100,000 Changteh homes already were submerged.

Official Chinese despatches said dikes along the north bank of the raging Yangtze river collapsed 150 miles above Hankow, letting the waters boil over the lowlands toward the Han river. The city of Kienn near where the breach in the dikes occurred was submerged.

Another important break in the dikes was reported at Mabukwi 20 miles below Kienn.

Negotiate For Air Pact

Britain May Conclude A Separate Agreement With Germany

London.—Great Britain may conclude a separate air agreement with Germany if efforts for a five-power air pact fail. Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, indicated before the House of Commons.

"It is the hope and intention of His Majesty's government that an agreement on all armaments shall be concluded among the five Locarno powers," he said.

A labor member asked, "Can Mr. Eden give assurance there is no intention of concluding a bilateral air pact with Germany alone as they have done on naval armaments?" Mr. Eden said, "That is a different question."

Coarse Grain Futures

Trading In December Is Authorized By Winnipeg Grain Council

Winnipeg.—Trading in December coarse grain futures was authorized by Winnipeg Grain Council. The order applies to oats, barley, flax and rye.

No change was made with respect to wheat in which July and August futures remain the only trading months on the board. Both options are pegged at 80 cents.

October coarse grain futures were posted April 24 at which time there was also a demand for October wheat. The government, however, has not authorized any trading in new wheat crop futures.

TRADE SITUATION WITH JAPAN IS HARD PROBLEM

Ottawa.—Neither the department of external affairs nor the Japanese legation in Ottawa had received any confirmation when the offices closed for the day of reports cable from Tokyo that a 50 per cent surtax would be imposed by Japan on certain imports from Canada.

The cable stated the surtax would apply to lumber and wheat as well as certain other commodities and would come into effect on July 13 for one year.

For some weeks negotiations have been proceeding between this Dominion and Japan. Officials here believed they were still in progress. The situation is a difficult one for a Canadian standpoint, officials state. Japan has low production costs and vigorous trade policies. In addition, and more important than either of the foregoing, is the depreciated state of the yen.

On a parity basis, the yen should cost about 40 cents in Canadian currency but actually costs only around 29 cents. With such a pull in the exchange, Canadian manufacturers of rubber goods, particularly rubber footwear, manufacturers of silk goods, and electrical appliances, have found the Japanese competition disturbing not only in external markets but in Canadian markets as well.

Department of national revenue has followed its usual custom of levying duties on goods from Japan on a 40-cent valuation of the yen. The importer instead of paying duty on what cost 100 yen or $28, has to pay duty on $48.

STEVENS WOULD TAKE ACTION TO REDUCE TARIFFS

Toronto.—Drastic reductions in such tariffs that affect British exporters will be advocated by the new Stevens party as one of its main planks, Hon. H. H. Stevens, former minister of trade and commerce, announced on his arrival here.

Mr. Stevens said his proposed tariff reduction policy would apply especially to those imports which are necessary and advantageous to Canadian farmers.

His party would take no stand, either way, on the question of repeal or amendment of section 98 of the criminal code, he said.

The leader of Canada's fourth party said his decision to advocate certain tariff reductions had been reached following his investigations with the mass buying and price spreads commission.

Immediately upon his arrival, Mr. Stevens went into conference with Warren K. Cook, Toronto; Thomas Lison, Hamilton, and Thomas V. Bell, Montreal, party organizers.

The conference was held under the party's platform and definitely decided on a name, it was said.

Mr. Stevens' reconstruction program would be "along the lines already indicated in my letters to Mr. Bennett," he said.

"We shall try to abandon the theories for the practical. We want to do something—not merely play with the problem. We do not desire to present a program of promises. We are eager to bring about results—to do something that really counts."

The new party leader was "Just Harry Stevens," just an ordinary fellow trying to do a bit of work for my fellow citizens—work that needs to be done by someone and needs doing badly."

Profit For Treasury

Revaluation Of Gold Also Aids Chartered Banks

Ottawa.—The Canadian treasury profited approximately $63,000,000 by the revaluing of gold and the chartered banks about $10,300,000. The weekly market of the Bank of Canada showed the effect of the revaluation under the Exchange Fund Act which received royal assent.

Gold coin and bullion held by the Bank of Canada was listed at $180,179,470. A week ago it was $106,671,415. Before the Exchange Fund Act came into effect gold was valued at the parity of $20.67 an ounce. Under the act it is the market value, roughly $35 an ounce.

While the object of the Exchange Fund Act was to provide a fund to regulate exchange such a fund will not be established unless a situation arises which will make it advisable. Accordingly the act provides that the fund should be established by order in council and no order in council has been passed or will be in the immediate future, it is understood. When such a fund is established it will be under the supervision of the minister of finance.

Smuggled Watch Parts

Polish Rabbi Arrested With $5,000 Worth In His Belt

New York.—With the arrest of Max Erblich, a Polish rabbi employed in the commissary of the liner Aquitania, treasury department officials said they had succeeded after several years in smashing a ring which smuggled hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of watch parts into the United States.

Government agents found 700 watch parts in a belt the rabbi was wearing. Total value of all parts found was estimated by treasury officials at $5,000.

Beef Subsidy

Yeovil, England.—Walter Elliot, minister of agriculture, in a speech announced he was introducing legislation in parliament to "extend the beef subsidy to domestic farmers for another 16 months. At the end of that time, he hoped the government would have prepared a long-term agricultural policy."
